A small field guide.

Three pages for a slower afternoon.
No destination required.

Take a short walk. Notice one thing you would usually pass. Bring back a sentence, a shape, or a question.

Print it, keep it on your phone, or leave it open beside a notebook.

OUT THERE

Leave the route a little open.

Fifteen minutes is enough. So is the view from a window.

01 Look for a line.

The edge of a shadow. A branch against the sky. A path that bends out of sight.

02 Wait for a change.

Stay with the view for a minute. What moves? What stays? What did you miss at first?

03 Keep one detail.

Write a sentence. Draw a shape. Record a few quiet seconds. One thing is enough.

> There is no right thing to come back with.

Leave places as you found them. The smallest observation can make a good story.

BACK HERE

Keep a little of it.

Date: _____ Place: _____

ONE THING I NOTICED

A COLOUR, SOUND, OR SHAPE

THE SENTENCE I WANT TO KEEP

SOMETHING TO RETURN TO

An original sample booklet for Stupid Simple Blogging.
Made to be printed, scribbled on, and changed.